

NANNA DEBOIS BUHL

Born 1975, Aarhus, Denmark

Lives and works in Copenhagen, Denmark

Nanna Debois Buhl (b. 1975, DK) is a Copenhagen-based visual artist whose practice draws connections across time periods and between micro and macro perspectives. Through studies spanning plants and particles, clouds, and computer memory she connects scientific, aesthetic, and speculative perspectives in order to nurture attentiveness to materials and to tell counter-histories. Her work materializes as photographs, weavings, installations, films, algorithm-based works, artist's books, and site-specific works in public space. She has a conceptual and experimental approach to her chosen media, and by combining historical and new technologies she connects what is addressed in her works to how they are made. Her practice can thus be speculative time travel through matter and meaning.
